

BANGKOK PATANA SCHOOL

Case study

Bangkok Patana School

Bangkok Patana School is Thailand's original British international school, located in South East Bangkok. Since its establishment in 1957 this not-for-profit school has remained at the forefront of education in Thailand and is today one of the most respected educational establishments in South East Asia catering for over 2,200 students from 65 different countries.

What challenges were they facing?

Bangkok Patana wanted to give their teachers the freedom to innovate and continuously adapt their teaching to meet the needs of their students. However, as a result, their learning community was using a myriad of virtual learning platforms; staff, students and parents were struggling to navigate the maze of different platforms and portals, along with their associated passwords.

The leadership team wanted to consolidate their tools and resources into a single, central hub, enabling one true view into the school, eliminating existing data silos and multiplying the value of all their other systems.

Why did they choose Firefly?

The ability for the learner to curate their own learning content, empowering them to go further every day was the biggest single factor influencing their decision. Firefly's modern learning experience platform gave them the flexibility they were looking for, liberating teachers to innovate for greater impact in the classroom and beyond, while empowering leaders with holistic visibility to drive a transformational modern learning strategy for the entire school community.

“The ability for the learner to curate their own learning content was the biggest single factor in influencing our decision.”

What has been the outcome?

After a two year study comparing and extensively trialling various options, Firefly was chosen as the school's modern learning experience platform. As well as accommodating the particular structure, operations, and pedagogical requirements of the school, Firefly promotes the school's unique identity, magnifying the strength of their values and culture.

Teachers are able to guide and continuously adapt the learning journey, curating content from multiple publishers and sources, yet all within a construct that is common across all school courses. Students take responsibility for their own learning with differentiated content helping every child achieve their personal best.

Working seamlessly with the systems and devices already in use at the school, Firefly allows the school to integrate existing tools, unifying them with single sign-on to provide a consistent experience for the students, parents and teachers.
